Dick O'Brien, Buxton Give Council Plan

Tell Student Council of Proposal to Revise Membership, Voting Rules of Representative Organization.

DEFER TILL MONDAY

A change in the method of electing student council representatives, elimination of sex qualifications for office holding, and a revision of the procedure of student elections were proposed as amendments to the student council constitution by Dick O'Brien '36 and Franklin Buxton '35 at a council meeting, Wednesday noon.

The council deferred considering the amendments until next Monday to permit members to study the proposals.

The amendments call for selecting one student council member from each class and four at large. Barb and Pan-Hel representatives would be dropped; according to the sponsors. The present council is composed of two representatives from each class and two from the Pan-Hel and Barb organizations.

The registration of voters early each semester is asked by O'Brien and Buxton. Another feature of the proposal is the elimination of sex qualifications for council membership. At present the council is composed equally of men and women.

Plan All-Day Silver Jubilee On Friday if Tickets Sold

Games in Afternoon, Barbecue Supper, Coronation of May Queen, and Dance on Program for Proposed Celebration for Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of University

THREE HUNDRED MUST BUY

THE student body voted for a dance the evening of May 25. There will be a dance that evening. The student body voted for a May Queen, to be crowned May 25. The queen will be duly crowned.

Despite what has happened since those ballots were cast, the student body is getting what it wanted. Members of the alumni association have good memories, for they remembered not only how the students voted, but also when the university was founded. They also have more imagination than the students dared to have, for they have added new features and more time to the celebration.

Twelve hours of entertainment to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the university have been planned by the alumni association. The only condition in putting on the affair, which would be called a Silver Jubilee and would occur next Friday, is that three hundred tickets must be sold.

Dr. W. H. Thompson, president of the alumni association, outlined the plan to the student body Wednesday after receiving promised support from heads of Greek organizations at a special meeting the day before.

It will be necessary to sell four hundred tickets at fifty cents apiece to pay expenses, but Dr. Thompson indicated that if three hundred are sold by Monday night, the jubilee is assured.

Barbecue, Dance
Festivities would begin in the early afternoon with sports, continue with a barbecue supper, coronation of the May Queen, and a dance in the evening.

At Wednesday's assembly, representatives of Greek organizations pledged support of the affair, and Leon Fouts, speaking for the Barbs, promised that the non-Greek students would "sell the rest of the five hundred tickets."

Asks Greek Backing
Presidents of Greek organizations met in Dr. Thompson's office Tuesday noon. He urged them to back the jubilee by pledging a sale of two tickets to every fraternity and sorority member.

May 25, the date of the proposed jubilee, was the date of Gala Day, which was abandoned because of controversy over the Gala Night show.

LITTLE BROTHERS

TODAY is Senior Day and Freshman Day. Almost everyone, it seems, can classify as either a freshman or a senior. All that is, except the juniors; they are too busy congratulating themselves on the dinner which they will give to the seniors tonight to note such mere externals as classifications. The faculty, of course, wouldn't want to classify as seniors (what, and take exams?). They might like to be freshmen, but, oh, dear, they must preserve their dignity and olympian aloofness. Deep in their hearts the seniors are undoubtedly resentful at having Freshman Day tacked onto Senior Day. (All their lives they have had little brothers and sisters tagging at their heels, wanting their noses blown.)

But the seniors can take it. They have reached man's estate, as the saying goes, and even if the old estate is mortgaged, they can take it still.

Life begins at forty: For us it began the day we discovered how to bait professors.

Love me, love my dog:
Love us, love our ads.

GALA DAY

The manner in which Gala Day has been handled this year is most disappointing. It would seem that college students have reached the age where they could produce a show without dividing the University into quarreling factions.

Arrangements for Gala Day this year have been characterized by one continual round of petty bickering and quarreling. The climax of the affair was reached last week when the faculty committee on student relations called off the show.

We do not lay the blame for this on one or the other faction in the dispute. The reasons for the failure of Gala Day lie in the students of Municipal University. Earlier in the semester, at the request of the Student Council, they voted to hold a dance in place of the traditional Gala Day show. The idea that students know what they want, however, evidently isn't in much favor around here, for this was the last that was heard about the dance and preparations for the show went on.

Municipal University students, like those at many other colleges, have come to realize that the time and energy that a show demands isn't worth it. Thanks to five years of the depression, they are a more serious-minded group than their predecessors. They are more interested in acquiring knowledge than in spending their time rehearsing shows that no one will come to see.

This year's Gala Show failure will not have been in vain if the powers that be will profit from the experience and in the future permit the students to hold an all-University dance. They may then put the idea of a Gala Show on the shelf with the other archaic traditions that have been shelved at Municipal University in the past three years.

STUDENT COUNCIL

A CHANGE in the manner of electing Student Council members is asked by two students who declare that the present Council is unrepresentative of the student body. The truth of the charges is well borne out in an analysis of the fraternal affiliations of Council members.

By means of a Student Directory and a few minutes figuring one deduces the startling fact that sixty-five students control two-thirds of the Student Council votes. We refer, of course, to the Thetas and Pi O's. Each organization has four members on the Student Council. The three remaining positions on the Council are filled by an Alpha Sig, a Phi Delt, and a Barb. The latter organization is entitled to two members, but has seen fit to elect only one.

The two other fraternities on the campus, the Phi Sigs and Betas, and three sororities, the Gammas, Kappas, and Sig Chis, are not represented on the Council. All this means that 550 Municipal University students (eleven-twelfths of the entire enrollment) have three Student Council representatives, while one-twelfth of the students control two-thirds of the Council membership.

The tragedy of the whole thing lies in the fact that on all too many occasions Student Council representatives view their positions as a means whereby to advance the interests of their fraternal organizations. Is it any wonder that someone wants to devise a different means of selecting Student Council representatives?

A college is only as good as its worst professor.

GRADES AGAIN

EVERY so often someone reminds us that grades aren't everything. We are quite willing to grant that. But when people begin to consider good grades a disgrace, we call a halt.

Certainly good grades indicate a high level of performance. Anyone may garner an occasional unearned "A," but a consistently high record is not achieved by accident. While a good record may not indicate superior learning, it does indicate hard work and pertinacity.

"Temperance, like thrift, is the virtue of the middle and laboring classes, because it is necessary to success in money-making."—Preserved Smith.

The by-products of university life are for many lads of greater import than the curriculum.

—Walter Phelps Hall.

DIRT AND WIT

THE student magazine, "Frigol," at the University of Iowa, has been suppressed because of alleged low humor. We are not acquainted with "Frigol," but if it is like most college "humor" magazines we think it can safely be suppressed—not on the grounds of smut—but on the grounds of boresomeness.

That a little dirt now and then ever hurt anyone we seriously doubt. That only morons enjoy "low" humor is not true, either. We need only mention Mark Twain, Lincoln, Watterson, Joseph Jefferson, Samuel Johnson, and Rabelais to illustrate our point.

The dirty story is hoary with age. The Greeks knew some good ones, as did indeed the Romans. During the middle ages the monks carefully pugged all existing literature of smutty lines, but lest the lines be forgotten, they carefully preserved them in appendices. Many expurgated manuscripts remain in good condition today; not so their appendices.

We see no evidence that the dirty story is on the wane. We note changes (it's a long time since we heard a Pat and Mike story), but extinction—no!

"Anyone with an I. Q. of sixty or above can learn to punctuate perfectly."—Wilfred Payne.

The treasurer of the senior class needn't feel discouraged at the procrastination of his classmates. We understand some of last year's seniors haven't paid their dues yet.

The chagrin of the Student Council at not being allowed to count the votes last Friday compensates in some measure for our own unsatisfied curiosity.

Nuts to You

By HOWARD WILCOX

Professor Blank summoned us to his office yesterday. He was in a jubilant mood.

"I've been reading last week's Getaway," he told us. "I see that Buxton and O'Brien have a plan to reorganize the student government of the University."

"I admire those lads. One of them might become a Thomas Paine. They are both a Paine to me."

"The best part of their plan is to drop sex qualifications for membership in the student council. Once Mae West told me to come up and see her some time. I went up. Since that time I have firmly believed that woman's place is in the home."

"Having nine members was a good idea, too. There's uncanny psychology behind that. When the University gets its nine new buildings, the members can be used as flag poles."

"I have suggested a few additions to their plans." He handed us a list written on the back of a Greasy Spoon menu.

1. One forgery expert (for elections).
2. One firing squad (for newspaper editors).
3. Nine decks of playing cards (for solitaire at council meetings).
4. Several barrel staves (for use on the student body).

"Did you get the p'int?" Blank asked suddenly.

"Of course!" we replied. "It's colossal, stupendous— But when we looked up, the professor had the telephone in his hand."

"Pipe down!" he dampered us. "I wasn't talking to you. I'm talking to one of my customers!"

Outdoor Play at Sigma Tau Picnic

A picnic supper at the summer cottage of Jay Planteen, '34, near Valley was held by Sigma Tau Delta, honorary English fraternity, Wednesday evening.

The supper was followed by election of officers for the coming year, and initiation of new members. Angeline White, '34, president of the organization, presided.

"There's Nothing New Under the Sun," an original play by Gladys Reynolds, graduate student, was staged out of doors by a Sigma Tau Delta cast and assisting members.

Head of Music Gives Air Talk

Mrs. Nell Griscom Gillard, head of the department of public school music, gave a radio talk May 8 on "Practical Values of Musical Education." Following the talk, the A Cappella choir of Yates grade school presented several numbers. The choir was directed by Betty Fellman, '36, who is practice teaching in public school music.

Three Municipal University students took part on the program of the Florence P. T. A. Wednesday, May 9. Frank Underwood gave a vocal number. Marjorie Smith played a violin solo, accompanied by Ellouise Jetter.

Frederick Bruggeman, former Municipal University student, will return this summer to continue his work in the department of music to obtain a degree. He has been teaching school in Baker, Montana.

Students who have majored in public school music, in both two and four-year courses, have secured jobs before graduating this semester, according to Mrs. Gillard, head of the music department.

Evelyn McDonald, two-year graduate of the public school music department, has been elected to conduct the Lincoln county chorus in the annual spring festival. Miss McDonald has been teaching for four years.
